Intangible Cultural Heritage Safeguarding Efforts in the Asia-Pacific 2010

Intangible Cultural Heritage Centre for Asia and the Pacific
In collaboration with Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy
The International Information and Networking Centre for Intangible Cultural Heritage in the Asia-Pacific Region proposed by the Korean government was finally approved as a category 2 centre under the auspices of UNESCO at the 35th session of the UNESCO General Conference last October. Over the course of the next year, the Centre and the Korean government prepared for the establishment of the UNESCO category 2 centre which is intended to become a hub for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in Asia and the Pacific region.

As a well intentioned objective for the future activities of this centre, ICHCAP initiated the 2009 Field Survey Project of the Intangible Cultural Heritage Safeguarding Efforts in the Asia-Pacific Region.

In 2010, ICHCAP worked in collaboration with institutions from seven countries which include: Bangladesh, Bhutan, Indonesia, Nepal, Papua New Guinea, Philippines, and Tajikistan to carry out the field surveys. The purpose of the field survey project was to obtain a grasp on the current situation of ICH safeguarding, along with specific details on each country's efforts in inventory making and relevant policies, laws, organisations, etc. The centre will continue this project over the next several years to cover all of the countries within the Asia-Pacific region.

The centre will serve Asia-Pacific Member States as an information and networking centre for the safeguarding of ICH. The final report from the project will serve as a resource that will help determine particular needs and provide direction for new cooperative projects for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage. It will also be used as a resource for states within the region to strengthen their understanding of intangible cultural heritage of other countries in the region.

Lastly, I would like to express my sincere gratitude to the institutions and researchers who actively cooperated with ICHCAP on the field survey project.

Asia and the Pacific region is an area rich with various elements of intangible cultural heritage. Intangible cultural heritage has been handed down from generation to generation and has contributed to the development of cultural diversity and the creativity of humanity. Intangible cultural heritage for social development is well recognised as it represents the evolvement of historical traditions and the cultural identity of a society embodied in creative expression.

Over time, the form and substance of intangible cultural heritage has become vulnerable to deterioration. In particular, rapid social change and globalisation have made this situation even more pressing. Fortunately, there has recently been an increase in global awareness in relation to the value of intangible cultural heritage and its safeguarding.

In this regard, ICHCAP has created a survey study plan to collect all the necessary information related to current safeguarding systems for intangible cultural heritage in the region. ICHCAP has been preparing this survey since 2008, and 2010 is the second year of the implementation of this project.

ICHCAP has collected relevant data from reports, workshop books, meeting resolutions, internet databases, etc. While the information is valuable, in many cases, the data is neither accurate, nor up to date. This is the reason ICHCAP has prepared a new survey to accumulate more current pertinent data.

The field survey was carried out by respected researchers in each country. For this project, ICHCAP developed a questionnaire to guide the research teams conducting the field surveys in each country. The questionnaire encompassed topics pertaining to safeguarding the present system & policy; intangible cultural heritage inventory; information regarding relevant conferences, symposiums and workshops; national and local pending issues and urgent needs within the field of intangible cultural heritage safeguarding.

Lastly, the information and data may be open to the public and ICHCAP will share necessary data with other Member States to support the implementation of the most effective and appropriate practices for the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage. We expect the project will assist in strengthening regional capacity and solidarity as well as international cooperation for the safeguarding of ICH in the region.
Field Survey Report
I. Safeguarding system & policy

1. ICH safeguarding system

The importance of culture has been significantly underscored in postliberation days. Bangladesh is committed for equal rights of people in every sphere of life. The urgency of protecting cultural heritage was strongly felt through the struggle for autonomy & independence. Immediately after independence state obligation was clearly envisaged in the new constitution of the country back in 1972.

Article-23 of our constitution says “The State shall adopt measures to conserve the cultural traditions and heritage of the people, and so to foster and improve the national language, literature and the arts that all sections of the people are afforded the opportunity to contribute towards and to participate in the enrichment of the national culture.”

Article-24 of the constitution envisaged: “The State shall adopt measures for the protection against disfigurement, damage or removal of all monuments, objects or places or special artistic or historic importance or interest.”

The highest legal instrument reflects commitment of the people and State in conserving cultural traditions & heritage and protection of cultural expressions of the people within its territory.

2. Law & other legal instruments

For proper preservation and maintenance, flourishing and development of national culture and cultural traditions as in our National Policy of Culture was proclaimed in 2006 to uphold the traditional cultural heritages, beliefs and religious faiths of all the groups of people including all small ethnic groups inhabiting Bangladesh in accordance with the prevailing traditions of our country.

A. Introduction

Culture is the expression of every aspect of the lives of the people of a community, society or a nation. It retains and reflects the day to day life of a people and their activities. Basic components of culture are: knowledge, beliefs, ideology, education, language, ethics, laws and regulations, customs and many others, with the help of which a man identifies himself as a member of a particular society and a nation.

Bangladesh has given priority to uphold her cultural identity. Article no 23 of 'Basics of Governance' in the constitution of Bangladesh describes: "the state will make arrangements to preserve and protect cultural traditions and heritage and to nourish and develop the national language, literature and arts in the way people from all walks of life can have opportunity to contribute to and participate in the flourishing of national culture." In addition, Article no. 24 describes: "The state will make arrangements to protect the places of historic importance, arts, relics or artifacts from distortion, damage or removal. In the light of these two Articles of the constitution, cultural affairs were first incorporated into a body under the Ministry of Education in Bangladesh in 1972. Now 'the Ministry of Cultural Affairs,' as an independent ministry, has been playing a vital role for the preservation and development of the country's cultural heritage.

Bangladesh has its own rich cultural heritage to glorify the image of the country in the world. It is possible to strengthen the position of the country as a nation through a perfect development of this culture and cultural heritage. Cultural activities can also be included with the economic development of the country. It is possible to develop a living cultural economy through an interactive patronization among cultural activities, cultural traditions, tourism and trades.

The area of culture in Bangladesh is wide and extensive. Along with the Ministry of Cultural Affairs, the Ministry of Information, the Ministry of Education, the Ministry of Commerce, the Ministry of Civil Aviation and Tourism, the Ministry of Women and Children Affairs and the Ministry of Religious Affairs can play an important role in preserving, nourishing, fostering and flourishing the cultural heritage and traditions. Endeavour has been made to reflect the relevant aspects of these ministries in the National Policy of Culture.

The government considers it to be of prime necessity to have a National Policy of Culture in Bangladesh for preservation, nourishment and proper nourishment of the glorious national culture for the sake of the overall development of the country. The National Policy of Culture is prepared for proper preservation and maintenance, nourishment and development of national culture and cultural traditions in compliance with UNESCO'S "Preliminary Draft of a Convention on the Protection of the Diversity of Cultural Contents and Artistic Expression-2004, WTO’S TRIPS, Copyright Act, Rome Convention (1961) and Berne Convention as per national ideology and Articles 23 and 24 of the second part of the constitution of the People’s Republic of Bangladesh on a greater perspective.

B. Objectives of National Policy of Culture

1) To uphold the cultural identities, beliefs and religious faiths of all the groups of people and communities inhabiting Bangladesh in accordance with the prevailing traditions of Bangladesh.
2) To protect the national culture from being degraded and to integrate cultural activities with the economic development of the country.
3) To develop properly the cultures of all small ethnic groups inhabiting Bangladesh and to consolidate social harmony in all communities.
4) To recognize positive aspects of other cultures in keeping pace with the norms of globalization and to prevent all evil trends of culture.

C. Basics of National Culture

1) To take integrated actions to uphold the history of the struggles of the people over the years, the Language Movement, the ideals of the War of Liberation and the religious faiths and beliefs of the people of the country.

coordination of all the public and private libraries at all the divisional and district levels.

- To popularize the public libraries, necessary steps shall be taken to make them suitable for all readers including children, women and the handicapped and to make arrangements for holding discussion and seminars on juvenile literature and scientific books and storytelling and book reading competitions for children.

- To make necessary arrangements for giving training to the concerned officers and staff for improving their professional skills with a view to developing the standard of services they are supposed to render.

- To take necessary steps to increase international cooperation with foreign libraries and such other agencies.

• National Library
  - To develop the National Library as the only legal depository of the country under copyright law with a view to ensuring the publication of national bibliography by co-coordinating the creative writings as e-publications, published regularly in Bangladesh in the form of CDs, microfilms etc. and those published regularly in the various branches of knowledge outside Bangladesh and to collect all the new publications.
  - To establish branches of National library at divisional and district levels if necessary with a view to ensuring the collection of creative writings from various regions of the country and to publish all kinds of books including national bibliographies regularly.
  - To introduce 'Best Book Award' on various subjects to encourage creative publications including the holding of 'Book Publication Ceremonies' to inform the people of the new publications and to collect and preserve other resourceful information like CDs, microfilms etc. besides various books.
  - To develop Bangladesh National Library into a modern digital library on the model of the national libraries of the different countries of the world as found in this age of e-publication and e-information service.

• National Book Centre
  - To follow National Book Policy of 1994 in the field of book publication and their use in Bangladesh.
  - To ensure the recognition of dignity of labour and intellect of concerned professionals including writers, translators, editors and designers involved in production of books and also to ensure the preservation of intellectual property.
- To take necessary measures to enhance professional skills at all levels, to ensure publication of books of international standard and to create a class of capable and meritorious publishers.

- To encourage the educated people to come forward in the field of publication, to arrange training courses, in-service trainings, workshops, seminars and symposia for the professionals dealing with publications in the country and to encourage them to participate in similar kinds of training programmes and seminars abroad.

- To encourage the professionals to establish their own organizations with a view to creating professionalism at all levels of publication and also to extend them all possible help and cooperation.

- To encourage import of printing materials particularly the machinery suitable for the printing of scientific and technological books with a view to making the publication sector modern and dynamic, and, at the same time, take necessary steps to encourage the manufacturers to produce improved quality of paper, ink and other printing materials.

- To encourage writing, printing and publishing of attractive textbooks, creative works of literature and scientific books for children in the language suitable for them.

- To encourage the publication of books that would satisfy the needs of the readers of different tastes and also to encourage the promising young writers.

- To encourage establishment of private libraries even at the grassroots level of the country to increase reading habit among people from all walks of life and develop the service to the readers of private libraries to materialize the reading habit programme of the government and also to extend necessary help and cooperation to those libraries.

- To hold book fairs regularly and participate in foreign book fairs with a view to expanding national book market at home and abroad.

7) Discussions on particular poets/writers at national level

One of our responsibilities for preservation of our culture is to hold programmes for discussing the works of writers, poets, litterateurs and artists and at the same time to preserve their works. With this end in view particular organizations have already been established and are being established. The Nazrul Institute after the national poet Kazi Nazrul Islam has already been established. There are organizations like Lalon Academy Complex at Kushtia, Mir Mosharraf Hossain Memorial Centre, Acrobatic Centre at Rajbari, Begum Rokeya Memorial Centre at Pairabandh. Soon Rabindra Memorial Centre will be established at Shilaidaha in Kushtia, frequented by Tagore during his life time. These organizations play a significant role in our cultural arena in so far as discussions and research on individual poet/writer and development are concerned.

- The Nazrul Institute:

  Nazrul Institute plays an ancillary role in the promotion of the literary works and songs of poet Nazrul Islam at national level. This institute shall take the following steps to promote all kinds of practice and research on Nazrul's literary works at home and abroad:

  - To take pragmatic steps to give training on songs in their original notations and lyrics and to preserve them and to arrange workshops under recitation training programmes.
  - To include compulsorily Nazrul's works in the syllabus of schools, colleges and universities to evaluate Nazrul's literature.
  - To collect important information and materials regarding Nazrul's life and works, to encourage researchers from home and abroad to do research on Nazrul and to introduce awards to this end.
  - To translate life and works of Nazrul in different languages of the world and to take necessary steps for the propagation of those translations preferably of some major languages, through our foreign embassies.
  - To attract tourists and Nazrul-lovers from home and abroad by preserving and developing places besmeared with the memories of Nazrul and to make the Nazrul Museum of the Institute more worth-seeing and attractive.
  - To hold 'Nazrul's Song Conference' at the national level at least once a year along with celebration of 'Nazrul's Birth Anniversary' at the national level.
  - To propagate Nazrul's patriotic songs and pieces of literature and philosophy of life through plays, cinemas, telefilms etc. to imbue the people with national spirit.

- Rabindra Memorial Centre

  Established for the purpose of comprehensive study on Tagore, this institute shall take the following steps keeping in view its aims and objects:

  - To take necessary steps in establishing Rabindra Memorial Centre in the places like Kushtia’s Shilaidaha, Patisar, Dakshin
Intangible Cultural Heritage Safeguarding Efforts in the Asia-Pacific

- Dihi, Phultala, Shahjadpur that are besmeared with Rabindranath’s memories.
- To preserve the memories of Rabindranath Tagore and undertake research on his literary works and work of art.
- To take initiatives in propagating the art and literary works of Tagore at the national and international levels.
- To propagate and publicize Tagore’s songs called Rabindra Sangeet in their original notations and lyrics following Tagore’s Sarabitan.
- To include compulsorily Rabindranath Tagore’s works in the syllabus of schools, colleges and universities to evaluate Tagore’s literature.
- To collect important information and materials regarding Tagore’s life and works, to encourage researchers from home and abroad to do research on Tagore and to introduce awards to this end.
- To translate life and works of Rabindranath Tagore in different languages of the world and to take necessary steps for the propagation of those translations preferably of some major languages, through our foreign embassies.
- To attract tourists and Rabindra-lovers from home and abroad by preserving and developing places besmeared with the memories of Rabindranath and to establish an attractive Rabindra Museum.
- To take necessary steps to exhibit and preserve poet Rabindranth Tagore’s works of art.
- To take necessary steps to preserve and exhibit Tagore’s works of art, particularly, those related to Bangladesh and also their replicas and photocopies by collecting from other countries if necessary.

- Lalon Academy Complex, Kushtia
  The Lalon Academy shall take necessary initiatives to preserve the memories and works of the mystic poet Lalon Shah, to promote the research work on Lalon’s songs and to propagate and publicize them at national and international levels.

- Mir Mosharraf Hossain Memorial Centre, Rajbari
  Mir Mosharraf Hossain Memorial Centre shall take necessary steps to preserve the literary works and memories of Mosharraf Hossain to undertake research on his literary works and to promote and publicize them at national and international levels.

- Begum Rokeya Memorial Centre
  Begum Rokeya is called the pioneer who worked for the awakening of womenfolk in the subcontinent. Begum Rokeya Memorial Centre has been established so that the women of Bangladesh are inspired by the memories, life and works of this learned woman. The Centre shall take the following steps:

- To undertake comprehensive researches on the life and works of Begum Rokeya, to collect, preserve and publish her writings and to take measures to translate them into different languages and to publicize them at national and international levels.
- To inspire the comparatively disadvantaged women of the country in education for realizing the ideals of the great lady, to generate self-employment opportunities by offering them basic education and vocational training and to establish a rich museum by collecting information regarding various aspects of Women Movements in Bangladesh and different objects of folk culture.
- To take initiatives for the publicity of the writings of women writers through this centre.
- To introduce 'Begum Rokeya Literary Award'.
- To collect different folk materials and ensure their marketing for commercial purposes.
- To take necessary steps for introducing Begum Rokeya Memorial Award on various aspects of women development.

8) Other Organizations

- To ensure proper maintenance, security and development of cultural structures and tourist spots and to make efforts to enhance their beauty.
- To take necessary steps for the expansion of Nazrul-Tourism programmes.

11) Financing in Cultural Programmes

Government allocation of budget plays a basic role in the cultural, programmes of Bangladesh and in their development. On this context, activities of different ministries, departments and offices directorates / statutory organizations under them are run with the revenue budget of the government. A certain budgetary allocation is made annually for the purpose. In addition, it is possible to accelerate cultural development by the existing development projects run with the cooperation of different ministries, departments and organizations, government and various international organizations. Grants of new projects shall have to be utilized for implementation of the programmes undertaken in this policy. Dependence on revenue budget shall be reduced. All out efforts and comprehensive measures shall be taken to generate sources of their own income in every organization. It is possible to develop a cultural economy in this way and thus culture can be established as a factor for economic development.

Necessary arrangements shall be made to use a portion of the income earned from the visitors of the cultural structures and monuments.

12) International Cooperation for Cultural Development

Bangladesh has cultural agreement/contract with 38 countries of the world at present. Under this agreement cultural-exchanges have been carried out. According to these cultural exchanges the following activities shall be more strengthened for development of education, culture and sports of the country.

13) Implementation of National Policy of Culture and Evaluation

For implementation and reviewing the progress of these rules it is necessary to form a national committee consisting of famous cultural personalities and secretaries of all concerned ministries and headed by the minister / state minister of the Ministry of Cultural Affairs. The committee shall work to ensure implementation of National Policy of Culture. The committee shall meet in an inter-ministerial conference after every six months and shall discuss the progress of different programmes and give necessary directions.

To ensure the implementation of National Policy of Culture successfully, the secretary of the concerned ministry shall work as a head and meet in every month to discuss its progress. He shall chalk out specific programmes with the directions of National Committee formed by the government and give necessary guidelines to all concerned for proper implementation of National Policy of Culture.

13. Conclusion

Culture reflects all aspects of the lives of people from all walks of society or a nation. The people of Bangladesh feel proud of their culture and heritage. The issues of cultural development are also well-defined in our Constitution. By proper implementation of National Policy of Culture prepared under the Constitution of Bangladesh, preservation, promotion and nourishment of history and culture and traditions of Bangladesh is possible.

Cultural activities of Bangladesh are one of vital factors for development of its economy. An effective measure can be adopted to develop a sustainable to remove poverty by integrating tourism and commerce with cultural activities. This will add a new dimension to the development of the country’s economy and culture. Besides, culture and traditions are the most vital instruments for upholding the country’s image and identity to the world. It is possible to uphold our dignity before the world community by nourishing, fostering and fully developing and flourishing the country’s traditional culture.

Proper development of the cultural institutions and mutual cooperation and coordination among themselves are impossible for perfect nourishment of the culture and traditions of Bangladesh. Not only government but also non-government initiatives should be taken for the purpose. On this context, it is necessary to initiate various complementary programmes on the basis of mutual cooperation for development, preservation and patronization of the country’s tangible and intangible cultural heritage.

National policy of culture can play a pioneering role for cultural as well as overall development of the country. Bangladesh, as a nation, will be able to uphold its dignity and glorious identity through perfect development of its culture and traditions. National Policy of Culture will inspire all of us to work unitedly for national development.

Copyright Office is a quasi-judicial organization. The activities of the office are being governed by the Copyright Act, 2000 (amended in 2005). The Registrar of Copyright is head of the office.

Copyright is a subject-matter of statutory protection of Intellectual property in Bangladesh. It was originated from the British copyright system and later on in 1962, a copyright ordinance amalgamating the different copyright laws which were existed at that time, was promulgated, namely, the copyright ordinance of 1962. This ordinance was administered up to 1999. After that, a new law contain different provisions in the line of International standard was enacted in 2000, namely, the Copyright Act, 2000 (No 28 of 2000) and it is amended up to 2005.
The Copyright Act, 2000 (amended in 2005) contains, among others, the subject-matters of the TRIPS agreement in respect of Copyright and Related Rights, computer programmers, database, rental rights, cinema, broadcasting rights, performer’s rights, Phonograms rights etc.

Bangladesh has been extending Co-operation with the World Trade Organization (WTO), World Intellectual property Organization (WIPO) and UNESCO for enriching her copyright system.

An attempt is underway to establish a development project in the name of strengthening ‘Copyright System in Bangladesh’. Which is now at primary stage?

The main Activities of Copyright Office are as follows.

- Copyright registration: Registration of copyright under the copyright Act is Voluntary and not obligatory. The certificate issued by the registrar of copyright constitutes prima-facie evidence of ownership of copyright.
- Civil remedies: The copyright board consists of a chairman and not less than two or more than six members. The board acts as an appellate authority and is deemed to be civil court. The board hears the appeal submitted before it by an affected person for infringement of copyright. The judgment of the board is appeal able to higher courts.
- Compulsory licensing: The copyright Act includes some provisions relating to compulsory licensing for translation or reprint of foreign works as granted to developing countries by the two copyright conventions (Berne and universal conventions). The copyright board is empowered to hear application by Bangladesh nationals in this regard after giving an opportunity to the foreign copyright owners to be heard before finally deciding the questions.
- Transfer of copyright: Copyright is transferable in Bangladesh. The transfer may be in the form of licenses of contracts. The owner of copyright may assign the copyright to any person either wholly or partially or subject to limitation and either for the whole term of copyright or any part thereof. The assignment shall be in writing by the assignor by his duly authorized agent.
- Copyright piracy: Copyright office believed that piracy is an impediment in the way of development of education, science and culture and it, not only deters creative activities of a nation but also discourages the growth of publishing industries and investment thereof, relating to books music’s, films, art and sound recordings etc, which are based on the protection of copyright and related rights and are essentially needed for the purposes of promotion of culture and education.

- Collective administration of copyright: The copyright Act contains a number of provisions for collective administration of copyrights. 1) Introduction

Bangladesh our beloved motherland is the unique playground of the enchanting beauties of nature. On one extremity of the endless Bangladesh plains lie the deep waters of the Bay of Bengal; and the cool breezes blowing over the expanse of endless waves of the blue seas touch the sky-touching proud peaks of a remote wild hilly locality nature’s beloved daughter of diversity that we all call Bandarban. Diversity lies everywhere in this piece of tropical hills --- in its nature, fauna and rich ethnic and cultural diversity; diversity that is melt into a warm melody of unity, a harmony one can feel from one’s own heart. Only in Bandarban Hill District one can see the presence of all the eleven tribal peoples of the greater Chittagong Hill Tracts, i.e. Marma, Mro, Tripura, Bawn, Tanchangya, Chakma, Chak, Khyang, Khumi, Lushai and Pangkhua. There is no other district in Bangladesh where such a large number of tribal communities live with diversified identities, yet in a harmony. Since time immemorial the presence of a multi-cultural and multi-lingual society has rendered this serene corner of our lovely Bangladesh as an exemplary entity rich in cultural traditions, racial harmony tied into a bond of amity. And Bandarban --- nature’s belle --- has become the focus of the rich colourful traditions of the area and rendered it as the most peaceful area in the Chittagong Hill Tracts. Yet the lives of these tribes have remained far removed from the mainstream national culture due to its remote nature and inaccessible hills.
2) On which law was the office/organization established

The Tribal Cultural Institute, Rangamati was established in 1978 vide Memo. F.2/49/76-(C)/500/7 dated: 22-6-1976 of the Ministry of Education (Sports and Culture) with a view to carrying out research about the ways of life of the tribal people and their customs and practices and highlighting the common elements that exist between the tribal people and the people of the other parts of the country, so that, they could be brought in the mainstream of the national and cultural life. Since then the Institute had been run as a project of the Chittagong Hill Tracts Development Board till it was taken over by the Ministry of Education (Sports and Culture) and brought under its administrative control in July 1981. Later on, under the kind approval of the Honourable President on 30/03/1985 a regional office at Bandarban (and another at Cox's Bazar) was established on 13/06/1985 vide Memo. Sha.Saw. 2/2-17/81/565 dated: 31-3-1985 of the Cultural Affairs division of the Ministry of Education.

Another Autonomous Tribal Cultural Institute was established at Bandarban Hill District town vide Memo. 2. Non-governmental organizations

A. Asiatic Society of Bangladesh

Established in 1952, the Asiatic Society had been known as Asiatic Society of Pakistan, and since 1972 renamed as Asiatic Society of Bangladesh. In establishing the Society, the leading role was played by Ahmad Hasan Dani, the great archaeologist and Indologist of world repute. The other scholars involved in the foundation of the Society were Muhammad Shahidullah, ABM Habibullah, Abdul Halim, and many others. The founding scholars of the Society intended to make the organisation a centre of learning specialising on Asian studies.

The Asiatic Society of Bangladesh is a non political and non profit research organisation registered under both Society Act of 1864 and NGO Bureau, Government of Bangladesh. A premier learned organisation in the country, the Society is managed by a 17-member council elected by members. The tenure is for two years. While the day-to-day affairs are managed by the General Secretary and Secretary, the policy matters are being discussed and adopted by the Council. There are several standing subject committees to help the Council in undertaking its policies. The Council meets mandatorily at least once a month. The office bearers and members of the Council work on honourary basis.

6) General Secretary: Habibul Alam

Udichi is the largest Non-government Cultural Organisation in Bangladesh having 240 branches all over the country and abroad. Its external branches are in UK, USA, France and Australia. It was established in 1968 under the guidance of Sattyen Sen, a renowned journalist, litterateur, lyricist and music composer. He was also the first President of the organisation. Just after the inception the organisation started working amongst the agricultural and industrial workers through cultural activities to fight for freedom. It staged several street dramas, many patriotic songs throughout the country.
Generally, it became the most influential organisation in the cultural arena of this country after the liberation of Bangladesh.

This organisation can be well intrudes or defined if its objectives are explained. Some of them are as under:

- To create an environment in the country where self-development, easy transaction of opinions and culture and making the liberation fruitful to the life of general mass is possible.
- To be involved in overall cultural development of the country and to create an environment positive for proper development of national culture.
- To plan and execute its cultural activities in the light of emancipation of working mass.
- To coordinate in country regional cultural activities and to pay its all-out effort for its development and revival.
- To make fraternal relation with all the positive activities of the countries of the world.
- Udichi wants friendly relation amongst all people irrespective of religion, colour, caste, community and nationality.
- As war is the enemy of humanity, civilisation and culture, Udichi’s cultural activities will be against war and for world peace.
- Udichi will assimilate with itself all the creative and positive efforts of all poets, litterateur, dramatist, musicians, lyricists, artist, both renowned and promising in the country.
- As illiteracy in one of the main barriers to social development, Udichi will plan its cultural activities aiming elimination of illiteracy from the country.
- Udichi will work for revival, practice and safeguard our traditional cultural expressions i.e. all sorts of songs, folk dramas, festivals, musical instruments and all other cultural heritage items.
- Udichi will introduce our cultural expression internationally.
- Udichi will establish schools for training of music, art, drama, dance, etc.

Udichi has a good record of organising and managing large and small-scale events and art festivals. It has also organised many art workshops and seminars in various educational institutions, libraries, community centres, youth clubs and housing estates.
C. Chhayanaut

Chhayanaut is a cultural organisation in Dhaka, Bangladesh. Founded in 1961 in Dhaka, Chhayanat remains one of the most influential cultural groups in the country. As in the case of many similar organizations, it was established during the Pakistani rule in Bangladesh to promote and nurture the cultural and musical heritage of Bengal. Every year, Chhayanat arranges the biggest program in order to celebrate the Pahela Boishakh, the first day of Bangla new year.

• ‘Preservation & Awareness Raising on Folklore Tradition’ (2007) with The Embassy of The Federal Republic of Germany

• Awareness building programme on Disabled, Tribal people and Gender Dissimilarity through cultural performance with RDRS.

E.Bishwa Sahitya Kendra

(Bengali: বিশ্ব সাহিত্য কেন্দ্র, meaning 'World Literature Center'), is a non-profit institution in Bangladesh to promote reading habits, enlightenment and progressive ideas among students and general public.[1] Popularly known as just Kendro, this institution was established by famous writer, television presenter, organizer, and activist Abdullah Abu Sayeed. Sayeed was given the 97th Ramon Magsaysay Award in Journalism, Literature, and Creative Communication Arts for "... cultivating in the youth of Bangladesh a love for literature and its humanizing values through exposure to the great books of Bengal and the world" - which was a recognition of the contribution of Kendro.

Bishwa Sahitya Kendra offers classes on world literature for Higher Secondary students, and also provides every book for those classes. For Secondary and Junior school level it operates a nation-wide reading program, and provides books for the students. In 2007, it had 500 schools under this program, and over 100000 active student members.
Besides these programs, Bishwa Shahitya Kendro actively maintains libraries across the nation. It pioneered the concept of mobile library in Bangladesh, which carries books around the country. Since books are expensive and libraries are not available at all - these mobile libraries are getting very popular. Bishwa Shahitya Kendro also arranges reader’s forum and discussions, which are open to everyone who is interested. These events are open to new thoughts and encourages thoughtful logical discussions. Through these endeavors Bishwa Shahitya Kendro is continuing its works with a motto that says - "We just want enlightened humans".

The Kendro activities are mostly based in Bangladesh. It also has an office in New York.

G. Centre for Research on Art and Culture (CRAC)

Centre for Research on Art and Culture (CRAC), a research based organization, essentially organizes and conducts intense and elementary research on Art and Culture. Furthermore, based on these research outcomes, CRAC takes initiatives to do some corporal and sensible activities to promote artistic arena of different culture. Though CRAC is interested in Art and Culture of every isolated corner of the world, it starts up with the Art and Culture of Bangladesh. CRAC has started its journey, officially as a research based organization since 2009.

1) Vision
Flourish the cultural sector, preserve the heritage of Bangladesh, and bent a worldly country where all community can perform their cultural activities in a spirited manner.

2) Mission
Bangladesh has bestowed with rich cultural heritage and significant artistic tradition. CRAC wants to investigate and explore those obscured chapters of Art and heritage, and bring them out in front of mass people and civic society. Simultaneously, through various research and programs, CRAC wants to recognize the elements, motifs and styles of cultural heritage, which are going to be faded away or already wiped out.
3. Intangible cultural heritage preservation associations

A. Sammilita Sanskritik Jote (Federation of all Cultural Organizations, 182 Organizations of Dhaka City are members of the federation)

B. Bangladesh Group Theatre Federation - 92 Organizations

C. Abriti Samannay Parishasd - 100 Organizations

D. Bangladesh Sangeet Sangathan Samannay Parishad - 61 Organizations

E. Bangladesh Nritto Shilpi Sangstha - 70 Organizations

F. Bangladesh Pathanatok Parishad - 100 Organizations
There were two meetings recently held in Bangladesh related to Intangible Cultural Heritage. One meeting was headed by the Secretary, Ministry of Cultural Affairs. High level Government officials from different Institutions like Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy, Bangla Academy, Bangladesh National Commission for UNESCO, Copy Right Office etc were present in the meeting. The meeting focused on ICH Convention and its implementation in Bangladesh. A sub-committee was formed in this meeting to formulate policy for the better implementation of ICH Convention. Another meeting was the meeting of the Sub-Committee. This meeting ended with a decision to request Bangla Academy to translate the Convention into Bangla so that everybody related to ICH can better understand the Convention. Another important decision was taken in the meeting. That is to convene a large consultation meeting with the heads of the relevant organisations both in GOs and NGOs.
V. The Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity

1. Baul Songs

Baul Songs, originally proclaimed in 2005, is inscribed in 2008 on the Representative List of the Intangible Cultural Heritage of Humanity.

The Bauls are mystic minstrels living in rural Bangladesh and West Bengal, India. The Baul movement, at its peak in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries, has now regained popularity among the rural population of Bangladesh. Their music and way of life have influenced a large segment of Bengali culture, and particularly the compositions of Nobel Prize laureate Rabindranath Tagore.

Bauls live either near a village or travel from place to place and earn their living from singing to the accompaniment of the ektara, the lute dotara, a simple one-stringed instrument, and a drum called dubki. Bauls belong to an unorthodox devotional tradition, influenced by Hinduism, Buddhism, Bengali, Vasinavism and Sufi Islam, yet distinctly different from them. Bauls neither identify with any organized religion nor with the caste system, special deities, temples or sacred places. Their emphasis lies on the importance of a person’s physical body as the place where God resides. Bauls are admired for this freedom from convention as well as their music and poetry. Baul poetry, music, song and dance are devoted to finding humankind's relationship to God, and to achieving spiritual liberation. Their devotional songs can be traced back to the fifteenth century when they first appeared in Bengali literature.

Baul music represents a particular type of folk song, carrying influences of Hindu bhakti movements as well as the shuphi, a form of Sufi song. Songs are also used by the spiritual leader to instruct disciples in Baul philosophy, and are transmitted orally. The language of the songs is continuously modernized thus endowing it with contemporary relevance.

The preservation of the Baul songs and the general context in which they are performed depend mainly on the social and economic situation of their practitioners, the Bauls, who have always been a relatively marginalized group. Moreover, their situation has worsened in recent decades due to the general impoverishment of rural Bangladesh.

The creator and greatest composer of baul songs was lalon Shah (1774-1890). The place of his birth was the village Bharra in Kushtia’ or the village Harishpur in Jessore, according to another tradition. He lived the life of a devotee at a siant’s shrine at Chheuriya in Kushtia and there he died. He collected about himself a large band of followers and these followers collected their own followers and thus a large community of baul singers was organised. Lalon used to sing himself the baul songs he composed. His disciples like Duddu Shah, Panju Shah Pagla Kanai also composed and sang a number of baul songs following their master. These songs of Lalon number 2,000 to 2,500. His disciples added a few hundred more. Baul singers are spiritual devotees. Their quest is to attain spiritual bliss through transcending the human body. They seek union of the human body with the absolute. Baul songs have a few variety branching out from this philosophy of devotion. The bauls have no attachment for home; they are ascetics. The languorous mood of their songs is weighed down by sadness. Therefore baul songs do not rouse the spirits but induce escapism. Bauls believe that from the human body transcendence to the soul is possible and so they put much value upon the human soul. “O my mind, you know not farming, such valuable human farmland lies fallow, if you farmed it you could reap gold.” This is the baul belief. They are the promoters and purveyors of humanistic religion which surmounts all distinctions of caste and creed. Rabindranath Tagore called it human religion. In consideration of the humanistic angle of baul songs UNESCO, an organ of the United Nations, has decided to preserve these songs for their value as a heritage. The body-soul doctrine of devotion in baul songs has many mystical aspects expressed through devotion to the master (Gurutattva) and to the Creator (Srishtitattva) underlined by a yearning for a great union with the Absolute. A famous baul song written by Lalon Shah:

How the strange bird resides into the cage
And migrates out of it
If I could but catch it I would tether it with iron chains
It has eight chambers and nine doors
With latticed windows at intervals
Above that is the main chamber
On which is the hall of mirrors.
Had I but good fortune
Could the bird behave this way?
Opening the cage
To which woodland does my bird flee.
my mind, you only craved for the cage
Which is made of frail bamboo
Any day it may come down crumbling
Says Lalon with tears.

The main accompanying instrument of baul songs is ektara (one-stringed), variously known as lau, gopijantra, thunthuney. Some baul singers keep a small drum tied to his waist. With the left hand they strike the drum and play the ektara with the right and sing and dance either singly or in a group. Song, dance and instrument, the three combine to work up to a crescendo of beauty and emotion. Song is a part of their spiritual quest. Baul structurally is akin to bhatiyali; it also has elongated note but it possess many other characters which have made it distinctive. The melancholy tune of mystical baul songs can make a deep appeal in the minds of all sections of people. In Bangladesh Kushtia is the place of origin of baul songs; gradually it caught on in neighbouring Jessore, Faridpur Pabna, and then in Dhaka, Mymensingh, up to Sylhet. Similarly, in West Bengal this song spread to Nodiya, Bordhoman and Birbhum districts. It is now being sung by educated artistes and is being admired at home and abroad.
1) Safeguarding Measures

Bangladesh Shilpakala Acaemy recently has conducted a project in cooperation with UNESCO Dhaka for the safeguarding of Baul Song. The title of the Project is Action Plan for the Safeguarding of the Baul Songs (Bangladesh).

2) Project Brief

The Bauls are minstrels who travel from village to village, earning their living by singing. Their music, poetry and way of life have profoundly influenced Bengali culture. Bauls do not identify themselves with any organized religion nor with the caste system. They emphasize the importance of the human body as the place where God resides.

While Bauls are scattered all over the country as well as in west Bengal (India), the project concentrates on the Baul community from the Kushtia region where a great Baul Guru of Bengal, Lalon Shah, lived and created a tradition of intergenerational transmission of Baul songs. The project aims at ensuring the proper transmission of Baul songs through a series of workshops bringing together gurus and young Baul apprentices. Gurus, experts and scholars will study and evaluate the transmission process with a view to extend it to other regions with Baul communities. In parallel, a census of Bauls all over the country will be made to establish a register of minstrels and gurus. Meanwhile, documentation will be gathered leading to the publication of notations and recordings of Baul songs. A book on Baul songs for promotional purposes and the organization of Baul Melas (fairs) will raise awareness among the general public of the Baul heritage and of the importance of supporting its bearers.

The Action Plan focused on the following main components:

- Pilot project for the transmission of Baul Song
- Field Survey and documentation
- Promotion through the organization of Baul Melas (fair)
The project was carried under the supervision of a Steering Committee which will have a balanced representation of relevant organizations and of the community of the tradition bearers. The Bangladesh National Commission for UNESCO (BNCU) and Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy will in charge of the general co-ordination of the action plan.

4) Details of the Project

- Situation Analysis:
  The situation of the 'Baul song' is not good. Very rapidly they are declining day by day. So we need to "Safeguard" the 'Baul song' of our country.

- Objectives
  - To ensure that new generation of Bauls are properly trained in performance and/or transmission of Baul songs;
  - To identify the Baul communities of Bangladesh;
  - To raise awareness among the population of Bangladesh about the Baul Songs

- Specific : Restore & promote the 'Baul song'
  In order to 'safeguard' and promote the Baul Song, as well as to create awareness the mass to restore Baul songs by arranging seminar, symposium and Baul evening at different levels will be done like District, Division, National & International levels. Baul songs and the best Baul performance will be identified and those would be in the CD/VCD for archives.

• Implementation Arrangements
Bangladesh Shilpakaia Academy will act as the administrative and managing the program. Director of Research and Publication will act as Project Directo to DG, will co-ordinate the programs at different levels of the country as schedule. The development partner will be involved in preparing, executing, and following up the whole the program. The development partner will release fund in 4 installments through the Ministry of Cultural Affairs after getting specific requisition. Shilpakaia Academy will spent money as per approved TPP following PPR 2008. The Sub-department of finance of the Bangladesh Shilpakaia Academy will provide the accounting support as per rules and regulation and the provision of TPP.

5) Project inputs and Work Plan

• Pilot project for transmission:
Baul is a Guru based system. Gurus train their disciples in the Baul cult. They will therefore be supported to effectively transmit the wealth and know-how of Baul apprentices. A series of workshops should not only support the proper tradition in order to prevent further distortion. They should also sensitise the the importance of transmitting and performing Baul songs faithfully to the tradition to avoid distortion of this heritage, series of four workshops will be organised in Kushtia regions. Before and after these training workshops, two seminars with scholars, researchers, Baul gurus and other members of the community will be evaluate the needs and the gained experiences. Two advisers will part workshops and seminars and provide the midterm reporting as well as the final report of this project and formulate recommendations for expending experiences to other regions.

• Field Survey and Documentation:
While the Baul community of the Kushtia, and the neighboring districts is quite well known, there are Bauls in many other regions Bangladesh. It is therefore important to take census of the gurus and minstrels all over the country. A team composed of 3 researchers will survey a number of areas. In addition to the identification of the practitioners, Bauls songs will be collected and registered. The Field survey will result in a comprehensive registry of Baul practitioners with view to get a better understanding of the situation of this heritage in the various regions. This will serve as a basis for the continuity of the project and the extension of the transmission support to other regions, beyond the duration of this project: In addition, Baul Songs has not been studied in detail. Most of the documents on the chronological development of the Baul songs have been lost or remain inaccessible. No attempt has yet been made to write down Bauli music in notation and no anthology of representative Baul Songs is available. Although the Baul heritage relies on oral transmission, as Bauls are mostly illiterate, there is an urgent need to collect songs, notate them and provide scholars, researchers, as well as the general public with a compilation of notations and documentation of Baul songs. 50 songs among the collected Baul song texts and music will be selected and prepared for notation. These notations will be published in a book and an audio CD. This publication is expected to serve as a reference for scholars, aficionados and researchers. Meanwhile, there is a need to promote the Bauls and to raise awareness among the public on their heritage. The educated people in the so-called urban society are little interested in the Baul community and their songs. A general book on Baul (history, development, currents stakes, Baul literature, excerpts of Baul songs, etc.) will be published in both Bangla and English for large distribution.

- Organization of Baul Melas for promotion
  There is an urgent need to promote Baul songs among the society to encourage people at local, national and international level to support the community. Baul fairs, or Melas, will be organised with the triple objective to sensitize the population and regain popularity of Baul songs, to provide support to the community of tradition bearers and to create links between Bauls of different regions, especially with the Bauls from West Bengal, i.e. India. These major events, assembling 50 Bauls and hundreds of participants will constitute major events that will be covered by the media and will ensure the promotion of Baul songs at local national and international level.
• Expected Output:
  Get a congenial environment to 'Safe guard' the 'Baul song.

6) Outcome of the Project

• DVD of 50 songs, 500 Copies
• A book of 500 songs with transtation and notation of 100 songs

2. Provisional inscribed items (to be examined)

At present Bangladesh does not have any ICH on Provisional List. But Ministry of Cultural Affairs has taken a decision to submit the following two items of the Intangible Cultural Heritages for the inscription in the Representative List in the month of March 2011. Those are:

A. The Festival of Pahela Baishakh (Celebration of Bengali New Year)
B. Nakshi Kantha (Embroidered Quilt)

A. Festival of Pahela Baishakh

_Pahela Baishakh_, the first day of Baishakh, coincides with the first day of the Bangla New Year. It has been a festival of the Bengalis for a long time. It is said that _Pahela Baishakh_ has its origin in the Mughal period when Emperor Akbar introduced the Bangla calendar to ease tax collection. Actually no one knows when and how this day of celebration began.

Baishakh is the first month of the Bangla calendar. Most of the events in rural Bangladesh still take place according to this calendar. Baishakh is considered to be the most auspicious month for undertaking any business venture. The day starts with partaking of a heavy breakfast of _cheera, gur_ and yogurt. Then people get dressed to go to the fairs which take place every year at an appointed place, it being inevitably either the cool shade of a banyan tree or a riverfront usually at the bend of a river. The fair brings commodities of every sort, food of every variety, and sweets of endless kinds. The sight of clay dolls and toys made of plastic and rubber delight the children. A small boy hanging on to his father’s arm stubbornly insisting on buying a toy of his liking, his father cannot afford, is a common sight. But tears vanish as soon as the boy sees his favorite puppet show or a clown wearing a mask. Each year the celebration of _Pahela Baishakh_ turns into a human sea in parts of Dhaka. In the morning, processions called Prabhat Pheri come out with many fanfares. Cultural programs are organized to celebrate the New Year. Baishakhi melas (fairs) are held in the city. People of all ages throng these melas to buy toys, handicrafts, and sweets. Snake charmers, jugglers, and magicians mesmerize the enthusiastic crowd.

The following information derived from Wikipedia

- Bengali New Year celebration in Dhaka, Bangladesh.
  Bengali New Year (Bengali: Nôbobôrsho) or Poyela Boishakh (Pôhela Boishakh or Pôela Boishakh) is the first day of the Bengali calendar, celebrated in both Bangladesh and West Bengal, and in Bengali communities in Assam and Tripura. It coincides with the New Year's Days of numerous Southern Asian calendars.

  Poila Boishakh connects all ethnic Bengalis irrespective of religious and regional differences. In India, in West Bengal and Assam it is a public (state) holiday and is publicly celebrated in mid April. In Bangladesh, it is a national holiday celebrated around 14 April according to the official amended calendar designed by the Bangla Academy.

- Names
  Bengali New Year is referred to in Bengali as "New Year" (Bengali: Nôbobôrsho, from Sanskrit Navavarṣa) or "First of Boishakh" (Bengali: Pôhela Boishakh or Pôela Boishakh). Nobo means new and Borsho means year.

- History
  The Bengali calendar is closely tied with the Hindu Vedic solar calendar, based on the Surya Siddhanta. As with many other variants of the Hindu solar calendar, the Bengali calendar commences in mid-April of the Gregorian year. The first day of the Bengali year therefore coincides with the mid-April new year in Assam, Burma, Cambodia, Kerala, Manipur, Nepal, Orissa, Punjab, Sri Lanka, Tamil Nadu and Thailand.

  Under the Mughals, agricultural taxes were collected according to the Hijri calendar. However, as the Hijri calendar is a purely lunar calendar, it does not coincide with the harvest. As a result, farmers were hard-pressed to pay taxes out of season. In order to streamline tax collection, the Mughal Emperor Akbar ordered a reform of the calendar. Accordingly, Fatehullah Shirazi, a renowned scholar and astronomer, formulated the Bengali year on the basis of the Hijri lunar and Hindu solar calendars. The new Fasli San (agricultural year) was introduced on 10/11 March 1584, but was dated from Akbar's ascension to the throne in 1556. The new year subsequently became known as Bônggabdo or Bengali year.

Celebrations of Pohela Boishakh started from Akbar's reign. It was customary to clear up all dues on the last day of Choitro. On the next day, or the first day of the new year, landlords would entertain their tenants with sweets. On this occasion there used to be fairs and other festivities. In due course the occasion became part of domestic and social life, and turned into a day of merriment. The main event of the day was to open a halkhata or new book of accounts.

- In Dhaka

New Year's festivities are closely linked with rural life in Bengal. Usually on Pohela Boishakh, the home is thoroughly scrubbed and cleaned; people bathe early in the morning and dress in fine clothes. They spend much of the day visiting relatives, friends, and neighbours. Special foods are prepared to entertain guests. This is one rural festival that has become enormously big in the cities, especially in Dhaka.

Boishakhi fairs are arranged in many parts of the country. Various agricultural products, traditional handicrafts, toys, cosmetics, as well as various kinds of food and sweets are sold at these fairs. The fairs also provide entertainment, with singers and dancers staging jatra (traditional plays), pala gan, kobigan, jarigan, gambhira gan, gazir gan and alkap gan. They present folk songs as well as baul, marfati, murshidi and bhatiali songs. Narrative plays like Laila-Majnu, Yusuf-Zulekha and Radha-Krishna are staged. Among other attractions of these fairs are puppet shows and merry-go-rounds.

Many old festivals connected with New Year's Day have disappeared, while new festivals have been added. With the abolition of the zamindari system, the punya connected with the closing of land revenue accounts has disappeared. Kite flying in Dhaka and bull racing in Munshiganj used to be very colourful events. Other popular village games and sports were horse races, bullfights, cockfights, flying pigeons, and boat racing. Some festivals, however, continue to be observed; for example, bali (wrestling) in Chittagong and gambhira in Rajshahi are still popular events.

Observance of Pohela Boishakh has become popular in the cities. Early in the morning, people gather under a big tree or on the bank of a lake to witness the sunrise. Artists present songs to usher in the new year. People from all walks of life wear traditional Bengali attire: young women wear white saris with red borders, and adorn themselves with churi bangles, ful flowers, and tip (bindis). Men wear white paejama (pants) or lungi (dhoti/dhuti) (long skirt) and kurta (tunic).

Many townspeople start the day with the traditional breakfast of panta bhat (rice soaked in water), green chillies, onion, and fried hilsa fish.

Panta Ilish - a traditional platter of leftover rice soaked in water with fried Hilsa, supplemented with dried fish (Shutki), pickles (Achar), lentils (dal), green chillies and onion - a popular dish for the Pohela Boishakh festival.

The most colourful New Year's Day festival takes place in Dhaka. Large numbers of people gather early in the morning under the banyan tree at Ramna Park where Chhayanat artists open the day with Rabindranath Tagore’s famous song, Esho, he Boishakh, Esho Esho (Come, O Boishakh, Come, Come). A similar ceremony welcoming the new year is also held at the Institute of Fine Arts, University of Dhaka. Students and teachers of the institute take out a colourful procession and parade round the campus. Social and cultural organisations celebrate the day with cultural programmes. Newspapers bring out special supplements. There are also special programmes on radio and television.

The historical importance of Pohela Boishakh in the Bangladeshi context may be dated from the observance of the day by Chhayanat in 1965. In an attempt to suppress Bengali culture, the Pakistani Government had banned poems written by Rabindranath Tagore, the most famous poet and writer in Bengali literature. Protesting this move, Chhayanat opened their Pohela Boishakh celebrations at Ramna Park with Tagore's song welcoming the month. The day continued to be celebrated in East Pakistan as a symbol of Bengali culture. After 1972 it became a national festival, a symbol of the Bangladesh nationalist movement and an integral part of the people’s cultural heritage. Later, in the mid-1980s the Institute of Fine Arts added colour to the day by initiating the Boishakhi parade, which is much like a carnival parade.

Today, Pohela Boishakh celebrations also mark a day of cultural unity without distinction between class or religious affiliations. Of the major holidays celebrated in Bangladesh, only Pohela Boishakh comes without any preexisting expectations (specific religious identity, culture of gift-giving, etc.). Unlike holidays like Eid ul-Fitr, where dressing up in lavish clothes has become a norm, or Christmas where exchanging gifts has become an integral part of the holiday, Pohela Boishakh is really about celebrating the simpler, rural roots of the Bengal. As a result, more people can participate in the festivities together without the burden of having to reveal one’s class, religion, or financial capacity.

In Chittagong Hill Tracts

In the Chittagong Hill Tracts three different ethnic minority groups come together to merge their observance with Pohela Baishakh. Boisuk of Tripura people, Sangrai of Marma people and Biju of Chakma people have come together as Boi-Sa-Bi, a day of a wide variety of festivities that is observed on the last day of Chaitra i.e. 13 April. The day is a public holiday in the Chittagong Hill Tracts.

B. Nakshi Kantha

In one long narrative poem, Jasim Uddin, the Pallykoby (the Poet of the Village) made the nakshi kantha into the most famed of the traditional arts of Bangladesh. The poet tells of the love and marriage of a man and a woman. When the man is forced to leave his home, the woman sorrows, stitching her sad life into an embroidered quilt that will cover her grave at death. Suffused with the soft melancholy of village life, the poem won acclaim for its author, but no matter how fine his verse, the nakshi kantha would not have so risen in significance were it not, in itself, a thing rich with beauty and meaning.

One meaning of the nakshi kantha lies in the silent, private associations that a woman develops in her work, creating traditional motifs that hold memories for her alone. Each stitch traps time. Her work becomes a text of recall and remembrance. Another dimension of meaning lies in her craft. The sari in which a woman wraps her body is a single, seamless piece of cloth. Woven into unity, uncut, her cloth is an emblem of wholeness and oneness. After it is frayed and torn beyond use, her sari is not discarded. It is pieced and stitched into a quilt. Cloth decays into rags that are reunited in a new entity, much as the clay of the murti decays into the silt out of which new statues are shaped. The quilter’s act of reassembly locates her in the cyclical patterns of the cosmos that turn through birth and death and rebirth. The quilt, the kantha, exemplifies the Bangladeshi pattern of recycling in which useless fragments are combined into useful wholes. Men take broken bits of china and glass, fitting them together in intricate chinitikri mosaics that cover the walls of the mosques with bright floral patterns. Comparably, women piece rags into patchwork quilts. Patchwork is common in Bangladesh, but Bangladeshi women do not carry patchwork to the heights achieved by rural women in the United States. Instead, they pile up layers of old sari cloth and baste them together, creating a wide white field that they embroider with colored thread raveled from the borders of old saris. They finish the work by filling the white background with white stitchery that surrounds the colored motifs and quilts the whole into unity. The great art of the women of Bengal is embroidery, not patchwork. In the past, embroidered quilts exhibited distinct regional styles in the north, south, and west of the nation, forming a rough complementary distribution with the fine cane mats of the east. The great exemplary work was the nakshi kantha of Jessore.

At the center expands a radially symmetrical lotus. The lotus rides upon the water as a symbol of the power that abides in dampness, the power of God in nature. Power upon power: the lotus blooms upon the water to provide the seat of the deity, of Laksmi, the goddess of wealth, of Sarasvati, the goddess of wisdom, of Ganesa, the Lord of Beginnings, who is, like the quilt itself, an embodiment of rebirth, of life despite death. Toward the colorful lotus at the center, linear forms point from each corner. They might be trees of life, signs of the soul in ascent, or they might be flame-like, leaf-like kalkas, familiar from the shawls of Kashmir. Then the whole is bordered, protected by a running arcade of mihrabs, each enclosing flowers that stand like the pious at prayer. Framed by its Muslim borders, centered by its Hindu lotus, the field of the nakshi kantha is filled, packed with the images we have come to expect in Bangladesh.

There are depictions of nature's beauty and power: flowers and birds, butterflies and fish, horses and elephants. There are the artifacts of common life: agricultural tools, household implements, and village houses. There are the objects of a woman's desire: jewelry, mirrors, and a glorious wedding procession. And there are images that evoke religion: Muslim amulets and Hindu temple cars. With its run of floral mihrabs and its rolling temple cars, the masterpiece of the nakshi kantha artist, like the mystical song of the Baul, seeks a synthesis of the land's spiritual traditions, but other quilted and embroidered works are rigorously Islamic. Women make bags to protect the Holy Koran, stitched in abstract geometric designs, and they embroider prayer mats with stylized mosques. The recent nakshi kantha of Rajshahi, cross-stitched on a red ground, made for prayer, carries a domed mosque like the ones woven in cane on the eastern side of the country. Significant in its technology of recycling, significant in its decorative display, the classical nakshi kantha was also significant in its social purpose. It was given away to maintain familial bonds of duty and affection. Made as a gift to a daughter, the nakshi kantha was taken by the bride to her new home, where it obliterated distance in memory. Every stitch reminded a daughter of her mother's love. Made for a son or husband, the nakshi kantha was a transportable piece of the home. It gave him comfort when he was gone. Out on the road, rolling himself for sleep in a warm kantha, the man wrapped himself in cloth worn soft by the body of a beloved woman. Touching the rippled, densely worked surface, he felt the care she had lavished on her gift to him. A soft sheath of comfort and protection, the nakshi kantha incarnates affection, a mother's embrace, and it is fitting that when the new nation of Bangladesh was born, its fresh constitution was wrapped tenderly in an old nakshi kantha. Meticulous in its execution, demanding in its craft, the nakshi kantha belongs to the intimate circle of the family. It becomes the story of one woman, a symbol of her life and an apt topic for the poet, when she gives it the fullness of her devotion, repayment. Art made of love, is unfit to commercial production, in which time must be repaid in cash. Yet, since the 1980s, the craft has become a part of a commercial revival designed to get money to poor women and attractive, evocative commodities to prosperous consumers. Now there are nakshi kantha pillow covers and purses, bedspreads and pictorial wall hangings, that recycle traditional imagery for financial gain. The agencies that effected the revival, training women to the needle and distributing their products for sale, will ensure the continuity of the craft. Art is another matter. The nakshi kantha is no longer fastidiously composed of soft, worn scraps. It is made of new cloth. One of its meanings has vanished. Careful stitching can continue to exhibit the quality of a woman's hand. Embroidered motifs can continue to carry deep meanings. But when a woman is pressed to labor for wages and when she is supplied designs to copy, then it is difficult for her to maintain the integrity of her craft or to invest her imagery with personal significance. It is difficult but not impossible, because there are artists who still work alone, stitching with seriousness and creating their own designs, and there are artists who have upheld their personal standards while adjusting their work to meet the demands of the market. The nakshi kantha demands many types of stitch, and each one must be performed with precision. The women in her atelier quilt and embroider large bedspreads with a geometrical interlace of fanciful motifs. They quilt and embroider small mats for prayer. Like the cane mats of eastern Bangladesh, the embroidered mats of western Bangladesh make space sacred, and they become, like the murti of the potter, a tool used in ritual, an aid to communication with God. Significance endures as the fine old tradition, so precious to Bangladesh, shifts out of the intimate, familial realm to meet the challenges of a new age.
VI. Living Human Treasures System (LHTS)

Not exactly, as it is elaborated in UNESCO website. But Bangladesh Fine Art and Crafts Foundation, a government institution initiated a project almost with a view to achieve same result. The programme was taken in 1996 and it was functional up to 2001. Under this programme a family of each of the individual art and craft such as pottery, weaving of Jamdani saree, weaving of Cane Mat etc was selected and invited to stay at the Karu Palli (Village of Arts and Crafts) at the premises of the Foundation. They were given grants for the subsistence of their entire family and they were allowed to stay there for one year. They could also make a profit from the selling of the goods they produced here to visitors especially to the foreign tourists. At the same time their youngsters were getting the training from the elders. This project was supported solely by the Government of Bangladesh. Apparently the programme was working well at first. But there was a problem that these people were out of their roots for one year. After one year they found difficulty to settle in their old community. So gradually they became less interested to come to the Karu Palli.

During our survey we have seen that people like the idea of conducting similar project like The Living Human Treasures. We also recommended to the Government and NGOs and Private Organisations to take specific programmes for the safeguarding of Living Heritage those are on the verge of extinction. As for example, we have found Mr. Tukia Rema from the Garo community, a minority tribe living in the district of Netrokona. He is 74 now and probably the only surviving priest (they call Khamal) who knows the mantras for observing different festivals such as during the planting season, harvesting season etc.
Ⅶ. Pending issues & urgent needs regarding the safeguarding of ICH

Q1. Is any of the intangible cultural heritage in your country in danger of disappearance or transformation?

The fact that Bangladesh is a small country by area but culturally it is so varied that conducting a complete survey with a small project is very difficult, almost impossible in fact. What we have seen that many of the cultural expressions have already become extinct or on the verge of the extinction.

a) Muslin: Bengal has been renowned for fine muslins since ancient days. In Mughal times, merchants came from as far away as Turkey and Arabia, seeking exquisite textiles in the market of Demra, east of Dhaka. The muslins named for Dhaka were a technical marvel, carried by commerce across the world. During the early nineteenth century, British colonial policy succeeded in destroying the textile industry of Bengal, and reducing the people to poverty. Bengalis became suppliers of raw cotton and consumers of cloth woven in England. But the English mills could not produce a fabric as fine as the muslins of Dhaka. The weaving of cloth in normal grades declined abruptly, but the weaving of muslins, beyond the reach of British machines in fineness, continued. As metalwork today, when plain vessels are made by Hindus and engraved by Muslims, the textiles of the past divided by taste. Hindus wove fine, plain muslins. Muslims flowered them with embroidery or brocade. The jamdani will be a sari, one and a half yards wide, six yards long. Quality and cost depend on the fineness of the warp and the weight of the design. The weavers

divide designs into light and heavy. Light designs consist of small motifs sprinkled neatly into an overall pattern. Heavy designs have larger, interconnected motifs. All leave space to display the astonishing transparency of the ground, the woven air on which brocaded motifs float, and all have rich, running borders like those of Middle Eastern carpets. According to the Master Showkat Ali, the weavers know one hundred and sixty designs. New designs have been supplied by agencies for development in Dhaka, but the weavers do not use them, unless they are pressed by special commissions. They prefer the designs they learned when they learned to weave.

During the past two centuries, the center for brocades, for the textiles called jamdani, has shifted north in Narayanganj district, from Sonargaon to Rupganj. Across from Demra, the village of Rupshi runs north along the eastern bank of the Shitalakshya River. The weavers there, all of them Muslims, estimate that there are two to three thousand jamdani looms in the region.

But the art of the weaving Jamdani is on the verge of disappearance. It's because skill of weaving were transmitting to the next generation automatically. Now new generation are not interested to learn them from their parents as it can not ensure their smooth livelihood. A good quality Jamdani needs 15 days to one moth, sometimes even more. But the wage they get for this is much more lower in comparison to other business. That is why there is a huge transformation of profession in the community of the artist of Jamdani, the proud successor of Muslin, now itself is in risk.

In fact lot of items of ICH in Bangladesh are in danger of disappearing soon unless some drastic action is taken. These are as bellow.

- Setar (three stringed musical instrument), very few persons can now play this amazing musical instrument which must be safeguarded.
- Esraaj (stringed musical instrument), similar to Setar.
- Sarinda (stringed and bowing instrument) similar to Setar
- Vatialy, a form of folk song on the verge of disappearance.
Q2. What are the reasons the heritage is in danger and what type of safeguarding measures have been taken? Please be specific.

The basic problem of lack of safeguarding awareness in Bangladesh came out during our interview with Professor Sirajul Islam, President, Asiatic Society of Bangladesh. He made the most important point so far. That is, the essence of being careless of our very rich cultural traditions lies in the very mindset of the people of Bangladesh. As it is a Muslim majority country and Islam actually downgrades the importance of worldly things and give priority on the things of the other world after death. So basically people are unaware of the preservation and protection just opposite in the western society as it is materialistic.

Secondly, the trend of globalization as it is common all over the world has a huge influence for being careless about the root of the ancestors. The young people have a general tendency to become a world citizen where there is little value of upholding your own culture. More and more people are becoming cosmopolitan day by day. Rapid transformation of the society from agrarian to urban contributes a lot in ignoring age old traditions.

Thirdly, many people don't have adequate knowledge and means of preserving various items of ICH.

So far the safeguarding measures are limited to the performance of the various forms of music and dance. Bangladesh Shilpakala Academy and Bangla Academy have taken some specific measures to conduct massive survey nationwide and at the same time to produce a complete inventory and a good number of books have been published which should be reprinted for the mass distributions. And we feel, more comprehensive study should be conducted to gather all kinds of information about safeguarding measures.
Q3. What are the pending issues for safeguarding ICH in your country that you have found through interviews and the field survey?

We have seen that the Institutions are not well aware of safeguarding the ICH. They need some motivational training. The existing legal instruments also need to be amended to meet the changing situations. In most cases, the Organisations are undermanned and under-equipped.

Q4. What kind of problems and difficulties were encountered during the safeguarding projects?

All the institutions working in the process of safeguarding were very helpful during the projects. People are very enthusiastic to do their jobs. But they have limitations in terms of human and machine capacity.

Q5. What future plans are there for the safeguarding of ICH (programme information)?

What we have seen that there are efforts for the safeguarding of ICH in scattered way. Sometimes they are not aware of it. Or, if they are aware they are not serious about it. If they are serious they don’t have the capacities—both machine and human—to execute their plan.

To that end, we have talked to the government agencies. They have a plan to conduct at first massive awareness building programme among the stakeholders of ICH—such as policy makers, practitioners, officials in charge of safeguarding ICH in Bangladesh. They have a plan to conduct workshops and seminars and formulate policy for the better safeguarding of the ICH.

Q6. What type of contributions and cooperation from the international society is needed for the safeguarding of ICH in your country?

Training of the officials of the relevant Institutions/Organisations is much needed. At the same time they need motivation for performing their jobs. International society may extend their cooperation in joint venture with the Government of Bangladesh to enhance the capacity of the Institutions/Organisations who are working in the field of ICH.
Q7. What role do you expect ICHCAP to play in the safeguarding of intangible cultural heritage in the region in terms of programmes, projects, etc.?

ICHCAP may impart their knowledge they have gained from other countries regarding the safeguarding measures of ICH. We need to complete a comprehensive inventory on ICH. ICHCAP can share their knowledge regarding this. ICHCAP can play a pivotal role to conduct National Conference for the Safeguarding of ICH in Bangladesh.

Q8. Please include any requests and/or suggestions you have on this matter.

ICHCAP may render project aid to launch Living Human Treasures System (LHTS) in Bangladesh so that we may safeguard some of the endangered elements of ICH.

Q9. What should be considered to encourage or to ensure active involvement from the community in safeguarding intangible cultural heritage?

Just to conduct awareness building programme among the community. It is quite universal that people don't care about safeguarding their ICH simply because it is not on their priority list. Similar is the case in Bangladesh. True safeguarding process must involve the community. They will have to see the real benefit of safeguarding their ICH.

Conclusion

Bangladesh is a small country by area but it is highly rich in terms of number and varieties of cultural expressions. It's because the village based society was self-sufficient and self content. So it is very difficult, almost impossible, to have complete idea about its huge varieties of cultural expressions and gather complete information by such a small project about the safeguarding measures taken by our intelligentsia throughout the years. More over we had time constraint to conduct the survey. Still we think that the findings of this project will be vital for future activities in the field of ICH in Bangladesh-whether it is launched by the Government or other International Organisations.

       use its collections;
   (e) To borrow books and other collections from the Library:
   (f) To receive a Journal and other publications of the Society under rules determined by the Council.

15. Honorary Members and Fellows shall be entitled to all the privileges except (b) (c) of the Rule 14 They can serve on any Committee appointed by the Council, save that they shall not be entitled to vote except on such committees.

16. Associate Members shall be entitled to utilise the Library and Reading Room of the Society, attend the General Meeting save that they shall not be entitled to vote.

Subscriptions
17. The rate of subscription for Membership/Life Membership and admission fees shall be recommended by the Council and such recommendation shall be ratified by the majority members present at the Monthly General Meeting.

18. The subscription shall be paid annually and the full annual subscription and admission fees shall be due from the candidate on election. For the purpose of subscription the year shall be counted from 1st July to 30th June.

19. A Life Member shall pay a lump sum of money once for all, as determined under rule
    17. A Life Member shall have rights and privileges of the Member.

20. No admission fee or subscription shall be due from Fellows and Honorary Members.

21. No admission fee shall be due from the Associate members, who, however, shall pay annual subscriptions as determined by the Council.

22. The Council may require the members who reside abroad to pay the postal charges for receiving Society's publications.

Cessation of Membership
23. Any Member/Life Member may withdraw membership, after having paid in full all his dues to the Society by signifying his desire to do so in a letter addressed to the General Secretary.

24. A Member failing to pay his/her subscription for two consecutive years shall be liable to be removed from membership of the Society by the Council with a report to the Biennial General Meeting.
25. If any Member/Life Member willfully acts against the interest of the Society, disobeys the Rules or the orders of the Society or the Council, he/she shall be liable to be removed under Rule 26 from the membership.

26. Whenever there shall appear cause for the removal of a Member/Life Member from the Society, the Council shall investigate the matter and, if the case is established prima facie, shall recommend to the Monthly General Meeting the removal of the Member/Life Member concerned. The President then shall announce such a case to the Monthly General Meeting and getting consent from at least three-fourths of the members present, his/her name shall be struck off the rolls.

Source of Revenues

27. (a) Members' subscriptions, Government grants, donations, sale proceeds of publications, etc. shall constitute the sources of revenue of the Society.

(b) The accounts of the Society shall be audited every financial year by an accredited Chartered Accountants.

Administration and Officer-bearers

28. The administration, governance and management of the affairs of the Society shall be entrusted to a Council composed of a President, three Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, a General Secretary, a Secretary, ten Members, elected under Rules 32-36, and two Fellows to be co-opted by the Council. No office-bearer shall hold more than one office of the Society at a time.

29. The casual vacancies in the Council caused by reason of death, resignation, or some other reasons, may be filled by the Council from amongst suitable members of the Society subject to ratification of the same in the next Monthly General Meeting.

30. Enlightened persons making substantial donations, as determined by the Council from time to time, may be elected as Patrons by the Council and such election shall be ratified in the next Monthly General Meeting. The Patrons shall enjoy all the rights and privileges of a Member except for voting and contesting election.

31. To perform various functions of the Society the Council shall constitute several committees, such as, Editorial Board/s, Organization Committee, Publication Committee, Library Committee, Finance Committee, Research and Seminar Committee and other special Committees set up by the Council as and when necessary.

The Council

32. The tenure of the Council shall extend over two consecutive calendar years beginning from January.

33. The election of office-bearers and other Members of the Council shall take place on the expiry of the term of the sitting Council.
34. The candidates for election may be proposed in the prescribed Form in the form of a panel of names for the office-bearers. All such proposals shall be received by the General Secretary, on being duly proposed and seconded by bonafide Members and also signed by every eligible candidate. Such proposals shall be received by the 30th of November of the second year of the Council and the Council shall peruse the proposals and place them before the Members for voting through ballots at the Biennial General Meeting, provided that when there is no more panel than one, the said one shall be declared duly elected.

35. Candidates securing the majority of votes cast shall be declared elected. In case of an equal number of votes for any two or more candidates, the case shall be decided by drawing lots.

36. No Member shall hold the same office in the Council for more than two consecutive terms, and no Member shall be on the Council for more than three consecutive terms. A Member completing two/three consecutive terms as the case may be, may, however, seek election again at the expiry of another term of the Council.

Functions
37. The functions and duties of the Council shall be
   (a) To manage the affairs of the Society, and for such purpose to make such regulations as may appear to them conducive to the good administration of the Society and the attainment of the object of its foundation, provided that such regulations do not clash with the Rules herein laid;
   (b) To approve the budget prepared by the Treasurer;
   (c) To determine the rate of subscriptions, admission fees, and other dues of Members and to review the rate so fixed from time to time;
